

White Broiler (Straight run)

If you are looking for a fast-growing meat bird, these broilers should be your first choice. These will be ready for processing in just seven to eight weeks. These first-generation stock chicks have been selected for fast feathering, rapid growth, and carcass finish. Four pounds of weight in just seven weeks with a two- pound feed conversion and 98% livability are key features. This is the same kind of birds commercial chicken farms raise for your local grocery store.
